

From: Pete Wason
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/11/01 11:29pm
Subject: Nail Him Now Before He Owns Everything

Nail Gates. Gates is EVIL. M$ is at it again, jamming Windows XP down the throat of the public. Hmmm.... I wonder why it only runs well in 256MB of RAM? Crappy software, perhaps? Or maybe Bill is just honoring that deal he made with the RAM manufacturers....

By the way, there's another thing you should be looking at: Why many ISP's and websites, in order to be "compatible with the latest internet software from M$", are now becoming incompatible with internet software running on non-M$ systems.

Don't we have standards? And aren't standards something that we all agree on, not something dreamed up by the richest f in the world?

I've been surfing for years with non-M$ systems, and now I'm finding that slowly, ever so slowly, I am being blocked out of this site and that site, just because "well, if you were using Internet Explorer under Windows XP, you wouldn't have any problems..."

Yeah, right.

Except one REALLY BIG PROBLEM. I'd be using CRAPPY SOFTWARE.

Just my opinion ;-)

Pete Wason
Hy Noom Publications